David is a member of the Fearless Ones, the gang of friends who appear in the mystery and adventure series of novels written by José María Plaza. He is always telling horror stories to his friends (not always at the best moment), which he gets from an old manuscript he found in his grandfather's house. Luckily, he can never finish telling any of the tales... These 19 horror stories from are about a tattoo that moves around, a silent village with a huge cemetery, photos that come to life and change every day, a jealous vengeful cat who murders its owner's friends, a love capable of overcoming the limits of time, a bleeding piano and a killer MP3 player... mysteries that don't always have a solution.

Additional information Prizes and reviews:

'The gothic illustrations of Medusa Dollmaker, a Valencian artist with a Renaissance spirit, complete this carefully detailed edition: an old-fashioned cover and thin, yellowing pages edged in red. It all serves to intensify the unease, anxiety and trepidation these tales cause.'
