Seoul, in the distant future. Three parallel stories which end up becoming intertwined: a scientist carries out a high-risk experiment which has disastrous consequences; a doctor takes care of a monstrous baby and will need hard drugs to be able to bear it; a couple meet a woman with green skin on the road... The fates of these strange characters will cross inexorably, in an unstoppable spiral, making all the pieces of the most insane script fit to the millemetre.

Additional information Prizes and reviews:

David Sánchez won the Best New Author Prize at the Barcelona International Comic Salon for his previous work, You Have Killed Me (Astiberri, 2010).

“David Sánchez feels like a fish in water creating murky atmospheres. Suggestive, disturbing comics which dive into our dark side”.
