Celia is a thirteen-year-old girl who was cryogenically frozen because she was suffering from a terminal disease, and is now returned to the 22nd century to be adopted. In a future society where everyone has a robotic assistant Celia clashes with her adoptive mother's way of thinking, acting and relating, and with her environment, so different to that of her biological family. Celia's inability to adapt attracts the attention of Silvana, an emotional masseur who studies feelings lost by humans, and Leo, a young engineer who is designing a creativity prosthesis at the leading personal robot company, CraftER, whose director is the enigmatic Doctor Craft.
