A circus arrives in town, and Little Mouse is amazed at the majestic lion's performance. However, the lion seems sad. It does not like being shut up in a cage, and it wants to be free again, as it was when it was young and lived on the savannah. Little mouse would like to be as big and strong as the lion, and to hear the public's applause when it comes into the ring. Little Mouse has an idea: with the wizard's magic box, it can turn into a lion, and turn the lion into a mouse, and so both will know what it is like to live the life of the other.

Including an information section on lions.
