Edgar Allan Poe (1809-1849) was a great master of terror : confined or open spaces, psychological stress or extraordinary events serve to create his personal way of narrating and constructing a new aesthetics through fear, an element which has been present in literature since its origins.

Edelvives presents this graphic novel composed of three of his famous tales : MS. Found in a Bottle, The Cask of amontillado, and The Black Cat. The result is an admirable work thanks to a splendid adaptation of the text with frightening and extraordinary illustrations.
