The Little Dream was nervous, he didn't know what to do there, hidden behind that Dark Nightmare. At the end of the day he wasn't expecting to become a Big Proud Dream, and especially not a Golden Dream, which carried the distinction and prestige of being a human's greatest wish. His extreme smallness meant that he couldn't make use of those moments when we have a handful of important desires, but he had to try and be someone's small and insignificant Aspiration. "A wonderful story about our darkest and most lovely dreams."
