Mar and Álex are brothers. And, to their disgust, there is only 364 days between them, which means they have to share more things than they want: school, class, friends, and a birthmark on their left forearms, that they have a pile of stories about. Captain Bañuelos wrote them before his death for his daughter Olivia Valdés, who is —as you know—the most famous pop singer today. She and Biel, her mysterious manager, are desperately trying to find the songs. But it seems that someone is trying to get to them first...
