Winter 1936: the rebel troops that have risen up against the Second Spanish Republic bomb Madrid. The republican government decides to start evacuating the most valuable paintings in the Prado. This spectacular, complex mission involves the two heroes of this novel; Fidel and Lisandro work together in the storeroom of an important Madrid hardware store, and share a passion for painting that takes up all their free time. The ups and downs of the struggle finds the friends in different factions of the same band. What Is to Come is the story of friendship and betrayal; of pure hearts and stolen loves; the story of people trapped in a violent, chaotic reality that wipes out their plans and hopes...
