The biggest box in the world isn't just any old box. So Leonora, the cat in this story, can't be without it. Leonora isn't just any old cat either. She collects cockroaches, balls of wool, feathers, and especially boxes. Coloured boxes of all different sizes. Leonora lives surrounded by all sorts of things, but with all her things, perhaps she has forgotten to collect the most important thing – her own space. Why is this book so enchanting? 1. Because it emphasises common and important values; 2. Because it helps you to appreciate your time and space; 3. Because, while profound, is also lots of fun; and 4. Because the author is a marvellous discovery.
