This book is a map. The map is a portrait of the people and the strange ways of being that cohabit on the Cuban archipelago. Here you will follow Satan's trails in Habana; you will speak with a Mayan priestess and the last remaining practitioners of a religion that considers water a god; you will walk through caves, cities that face drought and hurricanes, and swamps, accompanied by bold crocodile hunters. You will discover the surreal day-to-day lives some Cubans live.
