On the 24th of December 1951, Paul Dingle disappeared without a trace in the port of Tangier. Sixty-four years later, Flora Gascón suspects that he was the same man with whom she had an affair and fell in love in Madrid. What is the connection?

The novel that Paul had on his bedside table, 'Niebla en Tánger'. Flora will travel to this magical city, full of secrets, in search of the novel's author, the only person who can tell her who her lover really is and how to find him. She will soon realise that she is the one who has to write the end of the story, as her own identity is also at stake. The journey Flora undertakes will take her deep inside herself. 'Niebla en Tánger' is a story of love and mystery in a magical and cosmopolitan city, with a fascinating past that will absorb the reader.
