Following a difficult illness and the loss of his sister in a traffic accident, Rodrigo moves into the old family holiday home by the sea. There this veteran journalist begins a journey through memories and thoughts from his adolescence. There he realises that there may be a different cause behind the death of his sister Silvia, which prompts him to embark on an almost police-like investigation that submerges him in the shady worlds of illegal immigration, drug trafficking and crime. A surprising novel from Pedro Miguel Lamet about internal triumph over human pain.
