THE WITCHES ARE NO LONGER IN HIDING... After centuries of persecution, witches can show themselves in the world without fear: they share their lives on the net, record themselves making spells and hold exclusive parties to which only members of the coven are invited. They've signed a pact with the Necromancers and normal people no longer fear their strange magical practices. Sabele, a young witch, is just about to undertake the tests for the Lady's apprenticeship which are held once a year... but on the night of the selection, there is an unexpected turn of fate. When the pact between the witches and the necromancers is thrown to the wind, Sabele and her friends witness deaths on both sides and begin to realise that nobody is safe.
