It was unlikely that their paths would ever cross, but it happened on the bus to the prison thanks to a flying paper crane. The world of the Bronx with its basketball courts and violence collided with that of the Upper East side, photography and a family that was falling apart. Then came the karaoke songs, the group of friends known as the broken toys and the hiding place in the old forgotten railway carriage. And those two getting to know one another inside out, more than bone deep. Perhaps that's where his inspiration came from. From what they would one day call love. Perhaps revisiting the great success of his past would be the solution... Although this means going back to his biggest mistake, when Damien was Damien and not the famous Tiger Ocean.
