When you love something you become the beloved thing. That is what happens to Rafaela Becerra in her book "...And a light emerged from the sea". In her work, things have a depth so that can only be expressed through the hands of someone with an extraordinary sensitivity.

The four short stories are the union of the love for her city and the love for life. Tenderness takes power on the ground and extends her long arms, embracing the reader.

One is not oneself after reading Rafaela Becerra because one has to read her beyond reason, where insignificant, tiny things talk to us in their own language, which only the soul can understand.
