To summarise, Daniel is already in his third year of Journalism although some things haven't changed: his relationship with Alicia and his powerful visions. This time his visions centre of Mexico where several youngsters like him have died in mysterious circumstances. Things become particularly complicated when one of his professors suggests a trip to Mexico as part of a history project. Once there, he is once again caught up in a mystery, this time tangled in a web of ancient, occult rites under the shadow of the incredible Aztec pyramids.
