This is the reality: we've turned our oceans and seas into a rubbish dump. Could one little girl speak to the sea-animals and find a solution to this problem? This is a beautiful ode, written by one of Spain's best loved personalities, Pablo Carbonell, with amazing illustrations by Tony Sandoval. The author himself has commented: "this is a story about a girl who is magically transported to reach the bottom of the sea enabling her to understand at first hand how we treat the other creatures that share the Earth with us. The main message of the book is that we have to put the brakes on and stop our excessive consumption. This is a book to be read with an adult so that children and adults can learn together. Environmental literacy is important for all ages."
