A book about war and the disasters it causes, borne out of the author's trips to ex-Yugoslavia in 1991 and 1994. This book is about war and the way people behave in extreme situations. The stories that make up this volume came out of Miguel Anxo Murado's personal experiences of the conflict that destroyed old Yugoslavia, a place he was working in as a war correspondent. This experience is narrated here with an expressive sobriety that highlights essential horror of the facts.
