Toadcop is a young toad with only one burning desire: to become a police officer. Everyday he talks about his wish to everyone he finds on the road, and he's so insistent that, after completing his secondary education, takes a long journey to Luque to fulfil his cherished dream. In his journey, he comes across some animals who try to discourage him, and then he's rejected at the academy again and again for his being unfit, too short or the wrong colour. The tale is a humorous appeal against prejudices and discrimination.
