With an autobiographical, and often poetic tone, the author recounts her life story, from her childhood and youth in her native Argentina to her present day experience in Spain. In this way, the reader is able to better comprehend the reasons why, every day all over the world, thousands of people make a decision which will change their lives, and will bring them to leave behind the place where they grew up and all the people they know. In other words, 'Entre dos lunas' puts emigration into the first person.
