Carmesina is a special little girl. As we all are, deep down. One day, thanks to the intervention of a very unusual Black Cat, she discovers that she has a gift that she should develop. Without knowing it, thanks to him, Carmesina will bring an accent of colour to a grey, glum world. This is the first story in a series of tales which speak to us of friendship, good humour, courage, ecology and love, with some real and fantastical, but above all very human characters, with whom the reader will identify.

'Los colores olvidados y otros relatos ilustrados' is a journey to fantasy and imagination, by way of fifteen stories which attempt to rescue our inner child. These stories are aimed at adult readers, while their written and visual style will also be pleasing to teenagers and young people.
